COGNITIVO/POLIS

CASA DAS MUDAS - MADEIRA 15 - 17 NOVEMBRO

In November we highlight the first edition of Cognitivopolis Festival, a brand new event that brings together creativity, technology and science.

The Casa das Mudas and the Estalagem da Ponta do Sol, host and welcome this interdisciplinary platform, where "talks, workshops, lab corners, installations, exhibitions, in areas like photography, illustration, astronomy, physics, music, augmented reality, among others".

The event begins on November 15 with a dinner followed by a concert on Friday at the Estalagem da Ponta do Sol, in a format of Wine&Music. On Saturday and Sunday takes off at the Casa das Mudas a wide-ranging programme, where it's possible to highlight names such as: David Rowan, editor of the British Magazine Wired; Danny Ivan, a Madeiran illustrator and designer; James Alliban, an interactive artist and e Will Jackson along with his RoboThespian, a life sized humanoid robot designed for human interaction in a public environment by EngineeredArts; Massimo Banzi, co-founder do Arduin Project; Pedro Macedo, a native composer, among many other names related to the main themes of this festival.

This event is produced by "urbanistas" and is funded by Project "Centro das Artes Global".

"THE CHRIST'S BY JOSÉ RODRIGUES IN THE MILLENNIUM BCP COLLECTION"

The Contemporary Art Museum of Funchal hosts an exhibition by Master José Rodrigues that assembles a collection of pieces of sculpture, drawing and painting. This display expresses the artist's intense research conducted over two years around the representation of Christ. A collection of strong reference and greatly marked by sign expressions reflected on the paintings.

José Rodrigues along with Armando Alves, Ângelo de Sousa and Jorge Pinheiro, were part of the "Group of the Four Twenties", a designation assigned to these four major figures in the cultural life of Oporto, who concluded their graduation courses with the final average score of 20 during the 60's.

"The Christ's by José Rodrigues in the Millennium BCP collection" may be visited from November 7 to January 3 of 2014.

LET'S LEARN MORE ABOUT THE SEA

Within the framework celebrations of the National Sea Day, which is held every year on the 16th of November, the Madeira Ethnographic Museum associated itself to these celebrations with a study tour to the Marineculture Centre of Calheta. An initiative targeted to a younger audience with the goal of providing a contact with the Sea, introducing the richness of the flora and fauna of Madeira Archipelago. This visit wishes to be also an alert towards the importance of the Sea as an essential element to life and in the perfect functioning of our ecosystem.

Throughout the month of November various entities will undertake several initiatives within the celebrations of the National Sea Day, Our special highlight goes to Clube Naval do Funchal, which will promote different activities targeted to both children and adults under the theme "Celebrate with us our greatest natural resource and heritage".
